

If someone greets you with "hi," a common response would be to also say "hi" or "hello" back to acknowledge their greeting. You could also add something like "how are you?" or "nice to see you" to continue the conversation. It ultimately depends on the context and your relationship with the person.

If someone greets you with "Good morning," a polite and appropriate response would be to also say "Good morning" back. It's a friendly way to acknowledge the person's greeting and can help set a positive tone for the interaction.

If someone says "Good night" to you, it's typically a sign that they are leaving or ending the conversation for the evening. A polite and appropriate response would be to also say "Good night" back, which acknowledges their farewell and also wishes them a good night's sleep.

If someone greets you with "Good afternoon," an appropriate response would be to also say "Good afternoon" back to acknowledge their greeting. "Good afternoon" is a formal and polite greeting that is typically used during the daytime hours.